Editorial Review

Review
ForeWord Clarion Review, Five Stars (out of Five), January 2010:

"If enlightenment is your goal, make it your journey." This is the motto of Belzebuub, a Gnostic spiritual teacher. In this collection ofinterviews, talks, and articles, he offers diverse and accessibleapproaches to making life more meaningful and fulfilling.

Theauthor asserts that spirituality is lived in every instant of one'slife, suggesting, "Let's look at what we actually do, becausespirituality is in what we do at any given moment: not in an idea, ahobby, or a belief which we adopt when we conveniently wish to or whenwe like to, but it's in the way that we live."

Belzebuub is apractitioner of the ancient philosophy of Gnosis, which, he explains,means "knowledge" in Greek, but which he describes as "a kind ofknowledge that is beyond the mind and the intellect - the knowledge ofthe heart... and there are techniques we can use to find it." Throughout this book, he provides such techniques. He instructs that directexperience is a better teacher than reading about a subject or listening to others' accounts of it.

His techniques, he writes, "involvegenerally observing ourselves, being aware, studying ourselves, andthere are also exercises of meditation, exercises to have out-of-bodyexperiences, to remember our dreams ... If we just take an academicapproach to all of this, it becomes a discussion of what we have read,and that's not Gnosis. Gnosis is what we have experienced." He goes onto guide the reader in how to have experiences that further theenlightened spiritual life.
Belzebuub was born Mark Pritchard in the UK; he writes under his spiritual name, which came to him during alifetime of mystical experiences. He leads courses and retreats inGnosis and spiritual growth around the world, and has written severalprevious books on such subjects, including The Peace of the SpiritWithin and A Course in Astral Travel and Dreams.

This book gives an introduction to Gnosis and Belzebuub's basic techniques, and thengoes on to offer lessons in such pursuits as the use of time, classicalmusic melodies, finding meaning in ancient sacred texts, near-deathexperiences, and gazing into the eternal.

In the last chapter,the author's poem describes the kind of day he likes to have: "My kindof day is when I wake up / and walk in this peaceful awareness... //When communication is almost telepathic / When words are spoken withmeaning... // When it feels like being in paradise / This is my kind ofday."

Gazing into the Eternal provides practical andtranscendent lessons in how to have this kind of day every day."--ForeWord Clarion Review, Five Stars (out of Five), January 2010

About the Author
Belzebuub (pronounced Bel-se-boob) is a contemporary mystic and spiritual author who imparts the powerful and timeless keys of esoteric knowledge and transformation, explained in a clear and objective way for today's mystical seekers. He is the author of a number of books on out-of-body experiences, dreams, self-knowledge, and awakening including A Course in Astral Travel and Dreams which was a bestseller in its genre and has appeared on over 60 radio and television programs internationally. In his writing spirituality is an objective personal search in which the experience and attainment of divinity occurs within the individual. Belzebuub's message is of the timeless journey to enlightenment which has been written down in sacred texts, etched on the walls of temples, and taught from guru to disciple since humanity first existed.
