This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1905 edition. Excerpt: ... The letter you mention to have wrote to Major Killpatrick neither he nor I have seen, so believe it must have miscarried. You have doubtless heard of what we have done upon the coast of Coromandel. What numerous and powerful enemies we have always had to encounter, and yet we have been constantly successful, which will lead you to consider of the fatal consequences that may attend a war in this country, especially if any other enemy should rise up and join us against the Nabob, which it will be in his power to prevent by listening to our proposals, which I enclose for your perusal; and I hope you will use your interest to induce the Nabob to comply with them, and bring this matter to a happy conclusion, and the Nabob shall find the English his friends instead of enemies, ready to join him and fight for him against all the disturbers of his province. I cannot upon many accounts approve of the intervention of the French in these affairs. Your integrity and friendship I can safely rely on, and beg that you and the Seats will be mediators between the Nabob and us. 176. Proposals to the Nawab enclosed in the two foregoing letters. 1. That the Nabob cause satisfaction to be made to the Company, to the English and all other inhabitants under their protection, for all the losses they have sustained by the captures of Calcutta, Cossimbazar, and all their other Settlements; that he cause restitution to be made of all goods, effects, merchandize, &c, seized at the different aurungs. 2. That he put the Company in full possession of all the countries, villages, priviledges, &c, granted them by the royal phirmaund. 3. That he suffer the English to secure and fortify themselves in their own possessions in such manner as not to be liable to the like...
